Mumsnet Premium Abbey Rowe Tue 26-Aug-08 15:12:14 My ds have a red and white wide stripe stripe top. Today I washed it for the first time with a machine. It said it washed like wool, so I did. When I went to get it, red ran white and there are pink swirls all over the nice white stripes. What should I do? Please help, it's a brand new and nice top! OP post: |caykon Tue 26-Aug-08 15:14:56 Something similar happened to me and I got something from the supermarket that sorted it, but I can't remember for my life I remember what it called. Look at the laundry section where it was designed for color execution. I think I can buy something called a more useful lucysmam fire 26-Aug-08 15:25:44 literally cooler run remover if it's something that can get you for the net 26-8-08 15:28:08 thanks to me in a box like the one you can get for the net. Perhaps these things are still better to work on when new, so I'd better nip out tonight. OP Post: | CantSleepWontSleep 26-Aug-08 15:39:03 I've used The Dylon Color Run Remover before, but it doesn't really work. If you are following the laundry instructions and it is new, I will return it to the store. tissy Tue 26-Aug-08 15:41:59 Not used much now, but next time I will do the first couple of COLD-30 deg or less and use a color catcher (a fabric that absorbs free dyes in the machine). You can get these from Sainsbury's (I imagine elsewhere too) and there's a similar one from Lakeland. tissy Tue 26-Aug-08 15:42:57 Color Run Remover is ok-ish for removing dye from what you need! it's white, but it's not that good for stripes. AbbyLou Tue 26-Aug-08 15:49:23 I wish I could CSWS, but I bought it at last winter's sale to grow into it. It is the only new in the sense that he has not weared it before. OP post: | Bran 26-August-08 15:52:20 Try washing again at 30 degrees with some color catchers, dyes that encounter white may run out again and get caught in the color catcher. Näytä kaikki images are not available Color: Color Catcher Packaging Color Catcher is the brand name for color run prevention products manufactured by spotless group. [1] Color catchers are distributed by spotless punches in the UK, distributed by the Irish punch industry[1], in Spain as at trapa color[3], by France's Eau Écarerate as a decolor stop[3] and by Guabel in Italy as Akchiaccacolol. The History Color Catcher was invented by Pat McNamarae[5] at Punch Industries in Ireland in 1993.It was made in the company's laboratory on Little Island in Cork. The product range is an international bestseller and a market leader in color protection. [6] It is claimed that similar products before and after use prevent color runs in washing machine cycles and allow color and white to be washed together without causing color run accidents. It is sold in packets of 10 to 20 paper-like sheets intended to absorb excess dye released during the cleaning process by clothing before they have time to transfer to other garments. Under the name of the color catcher are several other products, such as oxy-action stain removers and sheets that are claimed to restore and maintain the whiteness of clothes. [7] [I need a better source] It helps to put the sheet in a mesh delicate wash bag to prevent the color catcher sheet from clogging the inner workings of the washing machine. The International the Color Catcher brand is sold in the U.S.C by shout brand S.C Johnson (U.S. products omit u in color according to American English). Color catchers are available in most European states. Color catchers are also sold in Cyprus, Australia, the United Arab Emirates and Russia. Color catcher seats are not sold in Canada. One competing product available in Canada is called Dr. Beckman Color & Dirt Collector. [10] Reference ^ ^ ^ Archive Copy Archived from original in 2007-11-29.
